++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Long sunny spells, scattered thundery showers developing.

Today:
Some long sunny spells across the region today, but scattered heavy and locally thundery showers are likely in the afternoon. Another very warm or hot day in the west, but cooler in eastern parts. Maximum temperature 30 deg C (86 deg F).

Tonight:
Any thundery showers dying out in the evening to leave a dry night across the region with long clear spells. Feeling humid, especially in the west. Minimum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Thursday:
Mostly dry with long sunny periods, and just the outside chance of a shower in the west. Hot again in the west, but coastal areas cooler with some patchy cloud. Maximum temperature 30 deg C (86 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Hazy sunshine on Friday but breezier and less warm, and with some thundery rain later in the evening. Saturday and Sunday cooler with showers, these locally heavy and thundery.
